Read-aloud example: our silly words are in the grey boxes.

Once upon a time there was a snowman called Snowy Sam, and he was very grumpy. His nose was an old carrot and his eyes were two shiny teaspoons. Every morning Sam would wiggle and grumble: I am far too cold! So the children dressed him in Grandpa's pyjamas and fed him a bowl of hot tomato soup. Sam felt warm for exactly 12 minutes. Then his friend the penguin waddled past and told him that snowmen are meant to be chilly. Sam thought about it for a long time. Then he took off Grandpa's pyjamas, said splosh! and decided that being cold was actually rather nice.
