Penguins

Penguins are birds, but they cannot fly. Instead, they use their wings as flippers to swim. Penguins are fast, strong swimmers.

Where do penguins live?

Almost all penguins live in the southern half of the world. Some live on the ice in Antarctica. Others live on rocky coasts. You can find them in New Zealand, Australia, South Africa and South America.

Big and small

The biggest penguin is the emperor penguin. It can be more than three feet tall. The smallest is the little penguin, which lives in New Zealand and Australia.

Keeping warm

Penguins have lots of thick, oily feathers. They also have a layer of fat under their skin. This keeps them warm in cold water.

Penguins eat fish and other small sea animals.
