January 2027 quiz: host's script

Read the questions aloud. Answers are in blue, with a fact to share.

How to run the quiz

1. Before you start: print one quiz (multiple-choice or open) for each team and the scoring sheet once. Keep the answer pages and this script with you.

2. Make teams of two to five, and mix quick talkers with careful thinkers. A table can be a team.

3. Read each question twice, slowly, facing the room. Read the four answers too if you are playing multiple choice.

4. There is no time limit: wait until every team has written something, then go on.

5. At the end of each round, read the answers and the fact under each one. Teams mark their own sheet or swap with the next table.

6. Add up the scores on the scoring sheet after each round, and use the tie-break if two teams draw.

Say: Welcome to our January quiz. There are four rounds of ten questions. Take your time, talk it over with your team, and write down your best answer: a guess is better than a blank.
